To whom it may concern

Shahab Kazemi is a research assistant at the Department of Management at Aarhus University, where I am employed as an assistant professor.

I have worked with Shahab on one research project that concluded in a published paper in Food Quality and Preference (a level 2 journal on the Danish BFI list). His main task was the analysis of unstructured text data, where he showed inspiring flexibility towards the task demand and developed a task-specific algorithm to solve the text-mining problem at hand.

During his time at the department, I always found Shahab to be a charismatic and insightful member of our scholarly community.

Shahab is a diligent, hard working person that tries hard to learn the skills for academia. He is both able to work independently and as part of a research team.

In short, Shahab is a delight to have as a colleague and I support his application in the fullest.

Should you need any further information about him, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Kind regards,

Anne O. Peschel
